There are times when errors or omissions come to light after the publication of an article. In these instances, it may be necessary to update the version of record. This notice presents such updates to two recent JMDE articles.

In the piece by Gates et al., published in issue 42 on 12/31/2022, the authors inadvertently omitted details that further describe references that they consulted when developing the survey instrument used in the study.

The changes include this text added to page 7:

We reviewed additional relevant references including a survey for small sellers of evaluation (Hwalek & Straub, 2018), evaluator self-assessment (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 2018), survey on evaluators' use of the logic of evaluation (Ozeki et al., 2019), and a research-based model and descriptions of evaluative criteria (Teasdale, 2021).

This is added to table 7:

Note: evaluative criteria listed here and descriptions were adapted from an established model (Teasdale, 2021). For more information on the survey development process and/or instrument, contact the first author.

Finally, two additional references were added:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Program Performance and Evaluation Office (2018). Evaluator self-assessment. https://www.cdc.gov/evaluation/tools/self_assessment/EvaluatorSelfAssessment.pdf

Ozeki, S., Coryn, C. L. S., & Schröter, D. C. (2019). Evaluation logic in practice: Findings from two empirical investigations of American Evaluation Association members. Evaluation and Program Planning, 76. <https://doi.org/10.1016/j.evalprogplan.2019.101681>

The authors extend their apologies for this omission. The original citation is updated and should be cited thus:

In the piece by Veda and Chilisa, published in issue 44 on 7/20/2023, the third mural image was inadvertently omitted from the final published version. The original citation is updated with a new ending page number and should be cited thus:
